We were not near to raise thine head,
To hear thy last farewell;
But in Heaven we hope to meet thee,
And there with thee to dwell.
Oh! how we miss thy cheerful face,
Thy wealth of love and care,
And bitter are the tears which flow
When we see thy vacant chair.

But we must lonely go through life
With tender thoughts of thee,
And henceforth thou wilt always come
To us in memory.
Oh! God, the blow is hard to bear,
Thy will, we know, is best,
And to our darling loved one grant
Sweet peace, eternal rest.

THORNTON'S ENGLAND TEAM v M.C.C. AUSTRALIAN TEAM.

The Australian Touring side had no difficulty in asserting their superiority in batting over Thornton's England team at Scarbrough yesterday, their opponents' score being passed shortly before the fifth wicket fell. Russell was our early one in singular fashion. He stooped to avoid a full pitch ball from Hitch, and in doing so, his hat slipped from his grasp, and fell on the wicket, knocking down the middle stump. Hobbs and Hearne laid the foundation of their team's score, by-putting on 139 for the second wicket in two hours. Then play was solid, rather than brilliant. Hearne was twice missed, and should have been run out, while Hobbs was left off in slips when 72. Stevens was concerned in three of these blunders. The two batsmen were caught bit the wicket at the same total in successive overs. Hobbs was batting for two hours and forty minutes, and hit seven fours. Hendren and Woolley afterwards hit up 58 for the fourth wicket in less than an hour, the Middlesex man being bowled in trying to drive Bettington's first delivery. The Englanders' 300 was passed while Douglas was in. Woolley batted freely after a steady opening, and reached 50 in an hour and a half, but he doubled the figures in three-quarters of an hour. He was finely caught at long on by Holmes with one hand, having hit 22 fours, and giving no chance. At the close the Tourists were 110 on, and had four wickets in hands. Score:—

LEINSTER v. MAJOR HON. S. FITZGERALD'S MILITARY XI.

The feature of Saturday's match at Rathmines yesterday was the splendid bowling of Ward, who took seven wickets for 25, and then had not the best of luck against a strong military team who were dismissed in two hours for 101. Nine wickets fell down for 64, but Sutton and Findlay added a very useful 37 for the last wicket. In the hour and a half that remained for play Leinster, who were without R. H. Lambert, lost six wickets for 114. Kempster, who had come in at No. 3, was the last to fall. Wells and Ward hit well. A resumption will be made to-day at 2 o'clock. Score:—

IRISH AMATEUR OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP.

VICTORY OF CAPTAIN C. N. MARTIN.

Inscribed on the Irish Amateur Open Championship Cup are the names of several of the most celebrated golfers of their time. John Ball won it five times—in 1892, 1894, and 1899; Harold H. Hilton triumphed in the years 1897, 1900, 1901, and 1903; W. B. Taylor was the champion of 1895, 1896, and 1898. The first golfer Ireland ever produced, Lionel L. Munn, secured the title on three successive occasions—1909, 1910, and 1911—and he was succeeded the following year by Gordon Lockhart. Yesterday evening Captain C. N. Martin, of the Gunners, who, like so many other Irish golfers served with distinction in the great war, gained the much-coveted distinction of having his name added to the long list of celebrities who carried off the most important golfing event decided annually in this country. By comparison with the entry in many previous years, the "field" which the Rev. J. L. Morrow started on Monday morning may not have been a strong one. It did not include any golfer of the calibre of John Ball, Harold Hilton, or Lionel Munn. But C. N. Bretherton, of the Handsworth Club, who defeated the Scot, J. D. Armour, in last year's final at Portrush, came to defend his title, and the Irishmen who entered included—with one, or, perhaps, two exceptions, the best of our Irish amateurs. Captain Martin saw to it that Bretherton did not repeat his triumph of a year ago. Ector Munn deprived last year's Close Champion, Captain Carter, of his expected victory, and in the semi-final round Captain Martin beat Ector Munn in one of the best and most exciting matches in the history of the Championship. He thus proved himself a golfer of excellence, and, having achieved the two most notable successes of the week, it was in the fitness of things that the conqueror of a champion and of an aspirant who had defeated a champion should himself become a champion.

C. W. Robertson, the other finalist, is a scratch-man of the Delgany Club. His journey to the final was a comparatively smooth one. The only match in which he was hard pressed was that with H. E. Scully, whom he beat 1 up. Robertson is the making of a very fine golfer. A young player with his style who drives so well and play his irons as he does is almost certain to improve. Mr. Delaney, the Delgany man is not a finished exponent of the game. That finesse, the application of which in the execution of the short shots is such a strong factor in the making of a golf champion, is, in his play, lacking. Had he been playing those short shots and putting like his opponent yesterday's match must have gone much further than the 31st (13th) hole. It was, however, a severe test. The play and the winning of five championship matches impose a great strain on a golfer inexperienced in championship golf, to say nothing of his having to face the ordeal of a 36 holes final against a seasoned player on whom such physical and mental disturbance has little or no effect. For that reason Robertson has no cause for regrets on the score of his defeat. He did remarkably well till the hour and a half turnock. At the end of the day he was a runner-up for the Irish Amateur Open Championship, a title which was also the lot of many distinguished golfers, such as L. Stuart Anderson, S. H. Fry, J. Mitchell, Gordon Lockhart, and the Hon. Michael Scott.

It was a delightful day for the final, and the players had another big gallery, but it was a rather disappointing match, and devoid of outstanding feature, with the exception, of course, of Robertson's having to "block at the eleventh for the second round. Here he was laid a dead stymie. Martin's ball lay on the edge of the hole, and to have touched it would have meant the loss of a hole. The Portrush man and the loss of it to Robertson. The ladder was then broken down. To-day, however, the aid of the putter was impossible; the line to the hole was completely blocked. Robertson uses an oblong wooden putter for every putt. But he also carries an iron one of the "Dominie" pattern. He took this tool out, reversed his position as if he were a "left-hander," struck the ball 2 ft. from counter tap with the back of the putter, and it dropped clean into the hole for the half in 5. It was the shot of the match.

The match was a one-sided affair. Martin won the first hole in 4. (He was nearly done in 5, but a long putt overrunning the hole. Robertson missed a comparatively short one for a win in 4 at the second, after playing the fifth better than his opponent, who was bunkered to the left from the tee. He should at least have halved the third, to which each played splendid seconds from bad lies off the shore; but he was very short with his lengthy approach puts, and failed to gain his next. In that way Robertson was 2 down going to the 4th. He got one back at this hole, to which he hit a grand brassey shot, left him on the green, for although he took three putts he was down in 5-5. Martin's drive, shot, however, alighted in the bunker. The Delgany man only won two other holes on the round—the 7th in 3-4, and the 15th in 5-5, but he was laid in stymie on the 14th, in attempting to hole which he knocked his opponent's ball in. So at the turn Martin was leading 4 up, the respective approximate figures being:—

C. N. MARTIN.

Out	4	5	4	6	5	5	4	4	5=42
In	4	4	3	6	5	5	3	5	3=39
Total									81

W. C. ROBERTSON.

Out	5	5	5	6	5	5	5	5	4=44
In	4	6	4	6	4	5	5	3	5=41
Total									85

Martin took three putts on the 15th, which the other won in 4-5; but Robertson had ill-luck, when after being bunkered on a good tee shot to the 30th, he failed to get down his putt for a half in 4. Martin was playing superior golf, however, and at the 32nd he had gone into a lead of 5. He lost that at the following hole, the hole at which he did so well on the previous day, the 34th (5th), after his tee shot was pulled into the rough; his second was in the rough, and he took 4 to reach the rough just over the green. Robertson played the ball to the pin well, and won it easily, but he presented his opponent with another win at the short 36th (7th). He topped his tee shot and failed to pick out of the pool. Martin was bunkered on the right, and took 5 in 6, and—like Robertson did two; got down in the 2 putts, but Martin did, and won the hole in 5-6 to become 3 up. A lovely 3 at the 37th (9th), scored by his holing a long putt, gave Martin a lead of 6 entering on the final 9. Three holes followed, Robertson lifting the stymie at the 39th (11th), after having failed to. Send the struggle ended on the 41st. It was a remarkably successful meeting, and a noteworthy feature was the marked improvement which was noticeable in the play of our amateurs. Championships at Portmarnock always are successful, for the officers of the club and the Secretary (Mr. Power) leave nothing undone to ensure the comfort and convenience of players and spectators. As usual the catering of Messrs. Kidd was excellent. Result—

Capt. C. N. MARTIN (Royal Portrush) beat C. W. ROBERTSON (Delgany)—6 and 5.

DONCASTER MEETING—YESTERDAY.

THE DONCASTER CUP.

VICTORY OF BUCHAN.

It was a delightful day for the wind-up of what has been a record gathering at round Cup day is always popular with the Yorkshire masses, and the crowd was again in enormous force.

A big lengthy field of twenty-two went out for the Danum Selling Nursery. The Weehill stable fully expected to score with Robina, and when she took up the running below the distance success seemed assured, but Happy then came along and ran her out of it. The three co-favourites, Tavistock and Magnet, both ran very poorly. There was a good send. Mr. McKenna giving 1,200 gns. for the winner. The opposition to Redbend in the Park Hill Stakes was moderate in the extreme, and odds had to be laid on Lord Derby's smart filly. As a matter of fact, she had nothing to do, and when given her head, a quarter of a mile from home, she drew out, to practically finish by herself from the 20 to 1 Sky Princess. A number of metal queer-looking horses were concerned in the Town Moor Handicap. Wilson showed speed to start with, but in the end Carbourndum and Violoncello singled themselves out, and Lord De Walden's three-year-old scored very cleverly.

The meeting of Buchan and Galloper Light in the Cup had been anticipated as one of the treats of the meeting, but the Grand Prix winner of last year gave a disappointing display, starting last, and finishing last. He got a severe kick from Brigand at the post, and this may account for his failure to do himself justice. On the contrary, Buchan had a clear course, his stable companion, Braishfield, doing his share of pacemaker, with the result that Buchan secured a very popular win. Spearwort gave a surprising good display, and was the only one that seriously challenged the supremacy of the winner. Pellington, the crack North country two-year-old, was always a good favourite for the Prince of Wales's Nursery, and when, after being tailed off, he hit his hit field, his supporters were on good terms, but to the general surprise he failed to stay, and honours went to the well-fancied Poiret. Harrier, also much favourite for the stakes, failed to stay, after taking the lead. Then Berlaes looked like scoring, but Stockards displayed the best stamina, and scored unexpectedly for Manton. DONCASTER BLOODSTOCK SALES.

FURTHER BIG PRICES FOR IRISH YEARLINGS.

Doncaster Yearling Sales were completed yesterday in a manner which must greatly hearten bloodstock breeders, as the figures for the week, as computed in guineas, are distinctly in advance of any before recorded in connection with these sales. Fair averages in several instances than this week been improved upon to a startling degree.

A large number of Irish yearlings were included in yesterday's catalogue, and the majority of them fetched wonderfully good prices. Mr. E. Bellaney (Dundalk) obtained 4,600 guineas for his three yearlings; while the eight sent by Mr. J. Maher (Clonsilla) fetched 12,240, top price (5,500 guineas) being realised for

PRATT'S TOURS

12, Londonderry to Belfast.

STARTING out from "Derry" on an excellent road there is a fine view of the city from the hill above Waterside. On through some beautifully wooded scenery via Oaks, Claudy and Tobermore to Castle Dawson, where the road is rather bumpy, the route passes through varied scenery to Randalstown and a finely wooded country. The tourist now makes an easy stage —passing Shane's Castle—to Antrim, where about a mile from the town stands the famous Round Tower, while in the district is the old tomb of the "Kings" in Dungiven Abbey, and Lough Neagh.

From Antrim a fine broad road with good surface runs through Templepatrick to Belfast, the second town in Ireland for size and wealth, the home of many important industries and full of a variety of interests for the tourist.

THE ETERNAL QUEST.

It is a pleasure to meet with so fascinating a piece of work as that which Lieutenant Fred C. Cornell has just given us. "The Glamour of Prospecting" is the search for copper, gold, emeralds, and, above all, diamonds, in South-Western Africa. There is a good map which makes it easy to follow the wanderings of the author; there are very fine illustrations, and we have only one fault to find—the fact that there is no index. But that is a fault that can be remedied in the new edition that the public is sure to demand.

In his chase of treasure time after time Mr. Cornell is on the point of realising his most sanguine hopes, and then something happens, and all his hopes are dashed to the ground, or rather are raised into air, and extremely thin air at that. Here is a taste of the quality of the writer in describing the wonderful mountain ranges through which the Orange River forces its hidden channel: "In serrated lines they stretched out like the teeth of a saw, and their crumbling slopes of rotten schist were of every shade of red—of brick-red, of flaring vermilion, of bright orange-red, in fact, of every red-hot gradation of colour. And across their flaming flanks, in startling contrast, were drawn long broad bands of intense black, sharply defined in huge zig-zags, and looking as though they had been scrawled across the scorching landscape by an enormous pencil. Between these strange peaks ran rivers of glaring white and yellow sand, and, riding through this uncanny goblin-land, the weird stories of huge snakes and monsters told by the Hottentots seemed no longer incre—"

Mr. Cornell tried to photograph and film the Great Orange Falls, double the height of Niagara, a terrific spout of water leaping into a narrow canon, with "on all sides nothing but riven, shattered rock, sheer precipice, and giant buttress, a nightmare of barrenness, of desolation so appalling that one might well be standing in some other planet, some dead world, from which all sign of life had long since vanished." Incidentally, it appears that this photograph was taken from a ledge overhanging the gulf, with the third leg of the tripod standing in the air.

There is a weird attraction about vast masses of sand. To these masses of sand Mr. Cornell contrives to impart something, a mysterious something, suspiciously like life. What is one to think of a land, or rather of a sand, in which, when the wind comes, "the whole country practically gets up and walks?" Where is actuality, where is reality, when "between the dunes the mirage glittered until it was difficult to realise that we were not walking on the only dry spot in the midst of a wide lake"?

If Nature turns mysterious, so does man. The Great War appears in this startling volume. We hear of a German soldier who was overwhelmed by the storms of sand. Bushmen carried him off to recover on a bed of diamonds in the desert "somewhere in German South-West." After his release he eagerly endeavoured to find the spot where he had been. He was found, instead, on the sand swollen with the poison of a bushman's arrow. "In an old pocket-book near him was found a rough diary he had kept of the route, and four large diamonds." It was not, what we had suspected, a touch of mirage. There is the tale of the "blue ground" which the prospectors, naturally, thought was the blue ground which ought to conceal numberless diamonds. They at last struck it, only to find that it was blue, but blue shale, and, therefore, without an atom of value.

We think that we have said enough to indicate that Mr. Cornell's book is quite out of the common. We are not sure that it is not one of the finest books of travel that we have read. We are, however, quite sure that no reader ought to begin it late in the evening, for he will not be able to go to bed till he has finished every line of it.

AN ECONOMIC HISTORY OF IRELAND.

This comprehensive survey of the economic conditions under which Ireland has developed gives the reader a thorough understanding of the factors underlying the industrial problems of to-day. In the romance of trade which is unfolded an excessive conservatism in employers and men will be found to have hampered a wider development of the country's resources. Even now Ireland does not seem to be making the most of her opportunities, and time and again Mr. Chart points out the shortsightedness of the policy of cattle dealers in sending on beasts "on the hoof," which is the least profitable form. There are no valid reasons why the fattening and killing should not be done at home, by which means the valuable bye-products, such as hides, horns and hooves, would form the raw material for local subsidiary industries, while the transport of carcases would save ship-room and freightage.

The account of the establishment of the Dublin Society in 1731, and the marked effect which it has had on the prosperity of the country, makes illuminating reading, and the stories of the foundation and rise of such houses as those of Guinness and Harland and Wolff are indeed romantic chapters in the history of Ireland. It is easy to see now that many measures adopted for the good of commerce were exceedingly ill-advised, but others again, which seemed evil, if not vicious, at the time of their framing, have turned out to be beneficial in their effects. The author presents his views in a fair-minded manner, and does not hesitate to condemn aspects of the nation's present economic system. He shows that several possibilities are still being neglected. The industrial future of Ireland seems to lie in the direction of developing at home the manufactures for whose prosecution she provides such an abundant supply of raw material."

VITALISM AND SCHOLASTICISM.

In this work Sir Bertram Windle has thoroughly revised his previous publication "What is Life?" and brought together the latest theories of the opposing schools, of which the one finds the basis of life in some unexplained vital factor and the other in the cold mechanism of chemical properties. Scholastic philosophy—the teaching of the Roman Catholic Church—that news has been regarded by the man of science, whether vitalist or anti-vitalist, as a scientific creed, but Dr. Windle shows that, beginning with Thomas Aquinas, by reducing everything to two aspects, "Matter" and "Form," it was abreast of that explanation of life which to-day finds that behind all the veils that have been rent asunder there remains something unseen which can find its explanation only in the creed of a Creator.

Even to those who have not read deeply either in philosophy or chemistry this work will prove of much interest. The history of the different schools of thought is clearly traced, and their fallacies or weaknesses exposed. Dr. Windle cumulates evidence on one side by full quotations, and undertakes to show the inherent weakness which he finds therein. His attacks in this way on the chemical theory of the cell—acknowledged by both sides to be the nucleus of all growth—appear to us to be both fair and successful, and similarly his criticism of the theory of "adaptations," This last-mentioned chapter contains some interesting facts on the natural life of fishes and animals. It is his wide culture and reading which place Sir Bertram Windle in a much stronger position than the mere theorist or chemist, and render this work, despite its specialist character, a veritable treasure-trove to those who wish to know something of the conclusions at which the greatest minds of to-day have arrived on the subject of Life.

UNPLEASANT SPIRITS.

The author commends a careful and reasonable study of this book to those who are seriously interested in psychic things, and believes that it will appeal to the general reader as well. But the latter will probably be a little shocked and certainly much puzzled. The scientific portions of the book are frankly beyond the normal comprehension, and many of the very words themselves do not appear in the dictionary. In relating his ghostly reminiscences one must believe that Mr. Bland is indulging in a joke at his readers' expense. For instance, there is the story of "Tregarven," a spirit who had been annoying a harmless gentleman on earth with constant rappings. A medium was obtained who was on good terms with spirits named "Louis" and "Montecatini," and the intention was to charge these familiars with a reprimand for "Tregarven." However, the last-named, on hearing what was afoot, himself came to the séance, dismissed the medium's familiars, and began to make offensive remarks through a gramaphone trumpet. This thoroughly annoyed "Tregarven's" mortal enemy, who "poured" into that trumpet a breadth of bilingual Spanish and English invective that would have led to murder anywhere." He laced into his ghostly antagonist to such good purpose that never a rap was heard again. Professional mediums, however, regard bad spirits as bad business, "and it is bad form to mention them outside certain circles."

Another illuminating story shows that there are male and female spirits, and that they have their little scandals in the spirit world. This is a book to be read after breakfast rather than before supper. It will comfort the general reader to learn that the power of the worst spirits only lasts throughout the night and fails at sunrise.

THE MODERN LANGUAGE YEAR BOOK.

Dr. Waterhouse, of Dublin University, is the editor of this publication of the Modern Language Association. His task was not an easy one, for he had to compress into 200 pages a rapid survey, by professors of acknowledged standing, of the literature, historical research and philosophy of the chief European countries during the past five years. Needless to say, it has been necessary in some cases to confine the survey to a particular aspect of literary activity. For instance, the French section is mainly occupied with recent bibliography on Anglo-Norman literature, and the Spanish section with studies of Cervantes. But these compressions are remedied by very comprehensive lists of the chief publications of the last five years, which will be a guide to the needs of the specialist, the student, and the teacher. The articles, though plain and business-like, are always helpful and illuminating, and not the least interesting are those by the editor and Mr. Ballough on the Government's attitude towards the study of modern languages.

NEW POETRY.

Mr. St. John Adcock has written a powerful piece of satire in his description of Mr. MacMammon's appearance in Heaven. "Mac" found that the earthly panegyrics of a successful financier and factory-owner are not a valid passport for Paradise, when his underpaid workers are ranged there in testimony against him. The shorter pieces in this slight booklet do not grip the interest so strongly, though the author's courage in using poetry as a medium for pronounced views on the modern social structure is fully justified.

WILD LIFE.

Miss Frances Pitt's book on "wild creatures" is the fruit of close and loving observation. Field mice, shrews, voles, rats, garden birds, hedgehogs, moles, bats, and snakes are herein described—not after the fashion of the scientific naturalist, but with the kindly interest of one who has established terms of friendship with these lowly creatures, most of which are commonly regarded as mere vermin. The author writes quite charmingly, and the book is illustrated with excellent photographs.

RECENT FICTION.

We hope that the anonymous writer of this finely conceived and living diary of events in a Swiss mountain chalet will be quick to disclose her identity. Possibly it is concealed because she herself is so closely associated with the events of the diary as to be accused of wearing a transparent veil, for there are personal touches in it through which radiant reality more nearly than every-day fiction permits. The gradual lessening of the writer from the depths of despair, in which she returned to her mountain haunts after the sadness of the war, is told with delicate insight. First it was the wonderful mercy of the scenery, then the interest which her two widowed visitors aroused, and finally the winning sympathy of the younger of the two—Polly, who had had the misfortune of two German husbands, and whom in the end the writer of the diary marries off to her cousin, the Dean! One does not often meet so satisfying a character, and all the author's humour, pathos and wisdom play daintily about her.

"In the Mountains." Macmillan. 7/6 net.

This novel deals with that dreary side of English rustic life that contains of our novelists love to depict. The maddening monotony of a farmhouse existence, when the human emotions are stultified by the weight of the day of toil, will probably be a little shocked and certainly much puzzled. The scientific portions of the book are frankly beyond the normal comprehension, and many of the very words themselves do not appear in the dictionary. In relating his ghostly reminiscences one must believe that Mr. Bland is indulging in a joke at his readers' expense. For instance, there is the story of "Tregarven," a spirit who had been annoying a harmless gentleman on earth with constant rappings. A medium was obtained who was on good terms with spirits named "Louis" and "Montecatini," and the intention was to charge these familiars with a reprimand for "Tregarven." However, the last-named, on hearing what was afoot, himself came to the séance, dismissed the medium's familiars, and began to make offensive remarks through a gramaphone trumpet. This thoroughly annoyed "Tregarven's" mortal enemy, who "poured" into that trumpet a breadth of bilingual Spanish and English invective that would have led to murder anywhere." WEATHER FORECAST.

General Inference.—The anti-cyclone over South-West England will maintain fair or fine weather over Southern England for at least the next twenty-four hours, but elsewhere conditions will become unsettled again before long, with a freshening south-west wind.

Ireland.—Moderate to fresh south-west wind, becoming cloudier and less settled; visibility good; moderate temperature.

CABINET AND IRELAND.

A meeting of the Cabinet was held yesterday. It is understood that Irish questions were under discussion.

The Irish Times.
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1920.

Returns supplied by the Allied Commission of Control in Germany show that the Germans are carrying out satisfactorily the disarmament provisions of the Versailles Treaty.

The Indian National Congress has adopted Mr. Gandhi's programme on the subject of non-co-operation.

Lithuania has made fresh proposals to Poland with regard to the demarcation of the frontiers.

The London Gazette announces the award of the Victoria Cross to the late temporary Captain Henry John Andrews, M.B.E., Indian Medical Service, and the late Lieutenant William David Kenny, late 4/30th Garhwal Rifles. Lieutenant Kenny was an Irishman, and a native of Donaghadee.

Speaking at Portsmouth last night, Mr. Cramp said that it was the duty of the railwaymen, as trades unionists, to stand by the miners if there should be a strike.

An aeroplane making a flight from Shotwich, Chester, to Baldonnel Aerodrome, fell into the sea close to Dalkey Island yesterday afternoon. The pilot and mechanic escaped uninjured.

The O'Conor Don has resigned his commissions as Deputy Lieutenant and Justice of the Peace for the County Roscommon.

Following the shootings in Galway on Thursday, the city was yesterday placed under the "Curfew" regulations, the hours being fixed as from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m.

At the inquest in Tullow yesterday on the bodies of Constables Delaney and Gaughan, a verdict of death from wounds inflicted by some person or persons unknown was returned.

The death is reported of one of the raiders engaged in the attempt to "hold up" the mail train at Drimbar, on the Donegal Railway line.

An Athlone Sinn Fein "Court" has found an ex-soldier guilty of theft, and sentenced him to be deported from Ireland for five years.

Charles O'Neill died in Belfast yesterday from wounds received during the riots. This brings the death roll up to thirty-two.

In London yesterday the Stocks were in a hesitating mood, but the undertone was stable. Money at the close was easier, but discount rates were hard. Bar gold rose to 116s. 6d. per oz. In Dublin the feature was the sharp fall in Dunlops on the proposed new issue of 3,000,000 shares at 30s.

The Irish Deadlock.

There is no slackening of the tide of murder and outrage in Ireland. On Thursday three policemen and two civilians met violent deaths, which were followed by scenes of disorder and destruction in Galway City and in the town of Tullow. We have no guarantee that similar incidents may not occur to-day or to-morrow in any other part of the South or West. Magistrates throughout the country are resigning their commissions in disgust or through a sense of sheer helplessness and despair. The Government, deprived of the support of public opinion, is unable to cope with the dreadful campaign of political murder, and the revenge which Bacon described as a kind of "wild justice" threatens to fill the vacuum which has been created by the disappearance of law. Such reprisals are always wrong, and their effects can be merely temporary. They solve no problem and serve only to engender lasting bitterness on both sides and to put new obstacles in the path of peace. We suppose that at this moment forty per cent. of the young men of Ireland possess rifles or revolvers and are ready to use them for purposes of warfare or defence. There would be something amusing, if the situation were less tragic, in the race between authority and lawlessness to collect the deadly weapons which would seem to be the most highly-prized possession of our civilised island at this alleged beginning of an era of world-peace. We are living, all of us, on the edge of a volcano which is giving daily signs of its increasing activity and soon may overwhelm us—Unionist, Nationalist, and Sinn Feiner alike—in one hideous and final eruption. Is this to be the end—the end of Unionist and Nationalist sacrifices in the great war, the end of Sinn Fein idealism, the end of constitutional Nationalism's long struggle for self-government within the Empire? The worst part of Ireland's tragedy to-day is the general paralysis of political, social and economic thought. The country, as a whole, is making no effort towards salvation. It appears to have resigned itself to a doom which, indeed, if that mood is maintained any longer, may become inevitable.

Yet there is no real need for despair. The Irish people, like all other peoples, want to live peaceful and prosperous lives. There is no innate antipathy between Ireland and Great Britain or between Northern Irishmen and Southern Irishmen. Our family quarrels have been due, at least partly, in the past to the mistakes of British Governments. If the campaign of murder should cease to-morrow, reprisals would cease also: they are the outcome of a wholly unnatural state of affairs. With good-will and common-sense on both sides, a lasting settlement of our political problem would be an easy matter—a mere matter of detail. We are convinced that the mass of Irish Nationalism is willing to accept a generous measure of self-government within the Empire, and that only the present tyranny of crime, with its necessary sequel of repression, prevents the public acknowledgment of that willingness. We are convinced that the best minds in Unionist Ulster would welcome such a settlement so long as Northern liberties and interests were safeguarded, and that under it we could hope for an ultimate—perhaps, an early—unity of all Irishmen in a common Parliament. The Irish temperament is by nature loyal, generous, and tolerant. Irishmen of all parties have proved in other lands that their country possesses in full measure the gifts of statesmanship. Even the present ordeal of fire has not destroyed the kindly qualities of our race. Many Southern Unionists have borne testimony in these columns to the conditions of confidence and good-fellowship in which they continue to live with their Nationalist neighbours. Unhappily, at this time all these fine qualities—all the toleration, the common-sense, the gifts of statesmanship—are hampered, and, in their idleness, Ireland is drifting rapidly to ruin. We have reached a moral and political deadlock. If we are to be saved, it must be resolved now, and we must do the work ourselves. The situation has passed out of all hands save our own.

The Greek philosopher said that, if he could find a base for his lever, he could move the world. If the sanity and intelligence of the Irish people, now in suspense, could be brought into full action, the whole situation would be transformed; but a beginning must be made, and who will make it? Who will rejoice the hearts of good Irishmen of all creeds and parties by breaking the vicious circle of crime and reprisals to which, an Irish among nations, we are so miserably bound? The Government is forced to use repression so long as murder and outrage prevail, and repression provokes new murders and outrages. Ireland has had more than enough of both. Her need is a truce, and she must convince the Government of her sincerity by making the first overture. It ought to come from the leaders of the Republican Party, who claim to be the mouthpiece of Nationalist Ireland; and, if they should make such an overture, they could claim, indeed, with entire justice, to represent in this matter the vast bulk of Nationalist opinion throughout the country. The first result would be the saving of the life of the Lord Mayor of Cork, whose death in prison, now imminent, would be not merely a cause of general sorrow, but would give a calamitous set-back to any prospect of peace. The next result of a truce from violence would be the unloosing of all the good-will and common-sense without which Ireland never can begin to shape her fortunes to happier ends. If, and when, such a truce is declared, the genius of construction will oust the genius of destruction; hope will banish despair; and Ireland will be entitled to require the Government to fulfil without further delay its plans of political settlement. Not until the reign of violence ends can the making of a new national life begin. How can any Irishmen who have power to offer such a truce dare to withhold it?

Road or Rail.

The rapid growth of motor transport since the war has been one of the most remarkable, and at the same time the most useful, features of British industry and commerce. Within the last year, as the head of a big business house in London told The Daily Chronicle on Wednesday, the volume of goods taken out of the city by motor lorries has trebled, and it is increasing every day. The railways must look to their laurels. London now is linked up by road with most of the important provincial centres of England, and the motor trade is sparing itself no pains in the extension of the lorry system. Within an area of 100 miles radius from London, it is stated, the charges for motor transport are uniformly less than the cost of railway freights. Moreover, the motor system saves a great deal of trouble. The lorry fetches the goods from the warehouse, and delivers them at the door of the trader to whom they are consigned. Despatch by rail, on the other hand, involves several transhipments. The goods are fetched by a carrier to the railway station, put in a truck, unloaded at their destination, and finally taken to the purchaser by another carrier. In addition to the expense of collection and delivery, this roundabout method exposes the goods to considerable risk, and, if they are perishable or fragile, the dangers of loss and breakage are far greater than if motor transport is used. Furthermore, delay in transit is reduced to a minimum, and the trader who sends his goods by road is freed from the annoyance of writing countless letters to railway companies in order to learn the fate of his overdue consignments. Altogether, business men in England are finding the motor lorries a godsend. Naturally, their number still is limited, and quite inadequate to the demand which is being made on their capacity. Nevertheless, production is proceeding apace, and regular services have been established between centres so far apart as London and Glasgow. As time progresses the facilities for the transport of merchandise by road are bound to improve, and the tendency of the trader will be to depend more and more on the lorry, and less and less on the goods train. Are the members of the National Union of Railwaymen alive to this fact? Their incessant and ever-growing demands for higher wages and shorter hours have constituted the chief factor in the great increase in railway freights. They have driven the trader to seek an alternative to the railway, and now he seems to have found it. One of these days the railwaymen will find that they have been cutting their own throats. Unless the railways earn profits there will be no wages, big or small, for the men; and unless the men put an end to their habit of putting in wage demands pour passer le temps, the railways assuredly will cease to earn profits. Of course, the chances are that before the development of motor transport goes much further, the chauffeurs will begin to clamour for more money, and motor freights will go up with a rush. For the present, however, and in the immediate future, the road will have the advantage over the railway line, and the railwaymen will be foolish if they ignore this menace to their own interests.

"Pictures" in Church.

America has come to the conclusion that Church Services are dull. Consequently, she has decided to enliven them. One has grown accustomed to startling innovations from the United States, but this latest "stunt" caps the climax. An organisation of Church and business men, we are told, called the "International Church Film Corporation," has been formed "to popularise Church-going on Sunday afternoon and evening, by displaying moving picture dramas, and comedies, based on stories taken from the Bible." The Corporation proposes to invite prominent Churchmen to write scenarios "thrillingly depicting Bible stories." The first picture to appear will be a "six-reel thriller," in the course of which the story of Jonah will be unfolded. No detail will be omitted. The departure from Tarshish, the storm, and the casting of lots, will be reproduced faithfully, after careful rehearsal at Los Angeles. Jonah will be cast into the sea amid a breathless silence in the congregation. The whale will swallow him according to plan, and Reel III. will rattle to a close. Now comes the "thrill." The "close-up" of the whale's interior will provide the scene of the next reel, and Jonah's behaviour in his trying plight will be followed, we have no doubt, with interest. They have their own ways of doing things in the New World, and far be it from us to disparage them. Nevertheless, we cannot but feel glad that a couple of thousand miles of Atlantic lie between us and the International Church Film Corporation—presumably, Limited.

The Golf Championship.

The final of the Irish Amateur Open Golf Championship, at Portmarnock yesterday, resulted in the victory of Captain G. N. Martin, of Portrush, over Mr. C. W. Robertson, of Delgany. Among the new champion's earlier victims were Mr. E. M. Munn,

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

50 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

The Prime Minister returned to London this morning, and at once had a consultation with Mr. Bonar Law and Sir R. Horne. It is understood that he expressed his approval of the attitude taken up by Sir R. Horne to the Miners' Federation Executive yesterday, and that it was not the intention of the Government to give way on any point. Mr. Lloyd George will not intervene, unless he thinks it is really necessary, since he feels that no good purpose could be served by coming into the arena now. In the meanwhile the preparations to meet any situation caused by a coal strike are still going on, and nothing is to be left to chance.

It is known that Mr. Herbert Smith, the leader of the Yorkshire miners, is opposed to a strike, and his speech yesterday has attracted much attention to-day. He pointed out that the difficulty is one that can be easily solved, but exactly what he meant by this statement is not known. Perhaps, he will make his position clearer as time goes on. It is reported to-day that another well-known Labour leader stated that "there will be no strike," but would say nothing more. I know that there is a very hopeful feeling among the trade unionists that the situation will be altered before long, but nobody seems able to give a reason.

Taken altogether, it would seem from the statements of the Government and the different Labour leaders that there is little prospect of an understanding being arrived at, but it has to be borne in mind that the miners think that there is quite a long time to go yet, and that a violent hurry might spoil their chances. Therefore, the statement made by Mr. Frank Hodges this morning that there was no new development in the situation, and that he did not expect any movement of any description to-day, was not unexpected. It is quite probable that the outlook will be come much darker before it lightens.

At the same time the Executive of the Miners' Federation are responsible for the serious situation that is arising in trade and industry owing to the uncertainty brought about by their threats. Unemployment is steadily growing, and there are pitiful stories of the distress among the dockers brought about by the shortage of coal. Many of the great works in the country are refusing orders owing to the uncertainty of the situation. Every hour accentuates the position, and this fact is recognised by the trade unions leaders, just as much as by the ordinary public. It is to be hoped that they will exercise their influence to put an end to it.

Naturally, there is a feeling of disappointment among the public at the result of the conference at the Board of Trade yesterday, but at the same time there is a general disposition to trust the Government in this matter. If a plebiscite of the people could be taken on this coal strike issue, I think it extremely likely that the support accorded to the Government would afford a very great surprise to trade unionism generally. The miners' leaders, however, did not leave the Board of Trade offices in any jubilant frame of mind. They seemed to expect at the opening that the trumpet blown at the Trade Union Congress the day before, that the miners' claims were just and deserved support, would have brought down the Government's opposition. They were, therefore, not prepared to find it unchanged.

The condition of the Lord Mayor of Cork continues to be very bad, but he remains conscious. Naturally, he is very weak and tired, for he is now in the fifth week of his voluntary fast. It is unfortunate that a solution to his case cannot be found, for his continued detention is causing discontent all round. At the same time it is worth noting that organised Labour is not paying much attention to his case. At the Trade Union Congress to-day Mr. Thomas declined to allow the question to be reopened, and this ruling was supported by the Congress, and the next business taken.

It is understood that a Cabinet meeting will be held next week to consider the Irish situation. Mr. Bonar Law did not commit himself when he received the deputation from the Ulster Unionist Labour Association this week, when the proceedings were veiled in secrecy, but it is thought that the Chief Secretary has now decided in favour of enrolling special constables to preserve law and order in Belfast and its suburbs. If these special constables are appointed, it is quite likely that they will be properly armed, but this is a matter that will have to be decided by the Cabinet if it gives its consent to the enrolment of special constables.

"Quex," in the Evening News to-night, says that he had an interesting talk yesterday with somebody who is in the very closest touch with the Irish problem. He was assured, he says, that 90 per cent. of Sinn Feiners are prepared to accept the Government's proposal of Irish self-government—which would be self-government without secession, and every safeguard for the security of this country in time of war—together with separate treatment for Ulster. But the Sinn Fein leaders are against it, and this is the reason why the present outlook seems so hopeless.

The Daily Herald gave many of its readers a great shock this morning by stating that Mr. Francis Meynell, acting on his own responsibility, had collected from the representatives of the Russian Soviet Government a sum of £75,000 for its use, it so desired. The newspaper asks its readers to say whether the sum should be accepted. It is described as a free gift, and without stipulations as to policy. Not a month ago Mr. Lansbury declared that he had received "not a bond, not a franc, not a rouble" for his paper, but admits now that one of its directors was collecting a large sum in Bolshevist gold at the very moment he was making such an announcement for the statement is made that the money is now in Mr. Meynell's possession. Surely, the working men who support the Daily Herald would rather pay an increased price than have their journal run by Bolshevist money?

The Soviet representatives in London said farewell to the Prime Minister this morning before leaving for Russia. These delegates will have some interesting news to relate to M. Lenin when they see him, and since he will not listen to those who do not share his opinions, it may be possible that they will not receive a very warm welcome. The visit of the delegates to London must have cost a very large sum of money, for expense has not been spared in any direction to ensure their general well-being and comfort.

Sir Eyre Crowe will probably be the successor of Lord Hardinge at the Foreign Office as Permanent Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. Sir Eyre Crowe, who has done much valuable work for the country, has been five years in the Foreign Office, and is fully entitled to the promotion caused by Lord Hardinge's going to Paris.

THE BELFAST DISORDERS.

A DISTRESS FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Standing Committee of the Irish Peace Conference has received many representations as to the deplorable plight of the unfortunate sufferers from the disturbances in Belfast. Apart from the casualties, there are many thousands of cases of loss of employment, home, and property, and very many of these are scattered through the country in a condition of destitution. An especially sad feature is that a very large proportion of the adult male sufferers are ex-soldiers who have served in the 10th and 16th (Irish) Divisions in the late war.

The Standing Committee has also been made aware of the fact that there are considerable numbers of the public in Ireland, and particularly in Southern Ireland, who would welcome an opportunity of contributing to a public fund for the relief of the sufferers. In particular, in those districts where such conflicts as exist are invariably free of the element of sectarian bitterness, there is a special desire on the part of the Protestant minority to subscribe money for the alleviation of the suffering of their fellow-countrymen, predominantly Roman Catholic, who are less favourably circumstanced.

In this view, and in the interests of domestic peace among Irishmen of all classes, we are instructed by the Standing Committee to suggest to you, sir, that you should open a fund and invite subscriptions of the public for the relief of the sufferers from the disturbances in Belfast. We are to add that, if you so decide, at his request, the Standing Committee will afford you its most earnest support, and that it has every reason to believe that your appeal will meet with a most liberal response.—Yours, etc.,

THOMAS H. GRATTAN-ESMONDE,
EDMUND A. SWAINE,
HENRY HARRISON,
Hon. Secretaries.
Irish Peace Conference.

Irish Peace Conference, 15 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, September 9th, 1920.

We have every sympathy with the purpose of this letter; but we think that it would be better served by the unanimous appeal of a general fund by the Peace Conference itself. We are sure that such a fund would receive the cordial support of our readers, and of Southern Irishmen in general.—EN. I.T.

AEROPLANE ACCIDENT AT DALKEY.

FALL INTO THE SEA.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM BURNING.

An aeroplane, which was flying from Shoreham, near Chester, to Baldonnel Aerodrome, Co. Dublin, came down in the sea at Dalkey Island yesterday afternoon. The machine carried Lieutenant Dement, pilot, and Observer-Mechanic L. Jones, who were rescued from the water by an old fisherman named Michael Hammond. Lieutenant Dement's machine, accompanied by another aeroplane, had been noticed approaching the South Dublin coast. When over Dalkey town it made a half circle, and turned back to the sea. A distress signal was thrown out, and, making a full circle, the machine came down in a steep incline into shallow water at the south end of the island. There is sudden descent into water meant the salvation of Lieutenant Dement and his observer from being burned alive. When near Dalkey as indicator in the machine showed Lieutenant Dement that something had gone wrong with the engine. There was imminent danger of the machine taking fire. To alight on land would have been to invite disaster, so he turned back and dropped into the sea. The fishermen, Hammond, said that when he took the airmen off the machine both men appeared shaken and exhausted. Lieutenant Dement, who had received a slight cut on the head, got safely into the boat, but Observer-Mechanic Jones fell into the water owing, according to one account, to his foot going through the canvas of one of the wings. Hammond rowed them to the landing slip of Mr. J. R. Cresswell's house, in Sorrento terrace. Mrs. Cresswell very kindly received them into her house, and not only provided refreshments, but also dry clothes for Mr. Jones. Lieutenant Dement communicated with Baldonnel Aerodrome, and in the evening a lorry brought out six men, including engineers, who crossed to the island. They removed the engine, the armament, and instruments from the machine, and brought them ashore. The aeroplane lies partially submerged at Dalkey Island.

THE NEW BISHOP OF OSSORY.

The Most Rev. John Allen Fitzgerald Gregg was born on the 9th July, 1873, and is a son of the late Rev. J. B. Gregg, Vicar of St. Nicholas's, Deptford. He is a nephew of the late Primate Gregg and a grandson of the late Bishop Gregg. He was educated at Bedford Grammar School and at Christ's College, Cambridge. He graduated B.A. in 1895 and M.A. in 1897. Among his University distinctions are 1st Classical Scholarship, the Stewart of Rannoch Scholarship, 1896; 1st Classical Prize, Porson, Part I., 1894; 1st Class, Part II., Classical and Hulsean Prize, 1896. He proceeded to the degree of B.D. in 1909. From 1896 to 1899 Dr. Gregg was Curate of Ballymena, and from 1899 to 1906 Curate and resident preacher of Belfast Cathedral. He was appointed Incumbent of Blackrock, Co. Cork, in 1906. While in Cork he gained a high reputation as a preacher and speaker, and was selected to succeed the Most Rev. Dr. Bernard (on the latter's election to the Bishopric of Ossory) as Archbishop King's Professor of Divinity in Trinity College, Dublin. He was appointed a Canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral in 1912, and Chaplain to the Lord Lieutenant in the same year. He became Archbishop Chaplain to the Archbishop of Dublin in 1915, and was also appointed the present Provost of T.C.D. as Bishop of Ossory. Dr. Gregg has published the following works:—"Epistle of St. Clement of Rome" (1897); "Commentary on Clement of Rome" (1899); "Epistle of St. Clement of Rome on the Epistle to the Ephesians" (in Journal of Theological Studies), 1900; "Book of Wisdom, Cambridge Bible for Schools," 1909; and "Additions to Father Charles's Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha of the Old Testament." He is also a scholar, preacher, and student of the religious problems of the day. Dr. Gregg is in the first rank among the clergy of the Church of Ireland, and his reputation is appreciated in his own country. At the last General Synod the new Archbishop brought in a bill, which was passed through the House, enabling women to sit upon vestries and represent Church interests.

At a meeting of the General Committee of the Cork Incorporated Church of Ireland Young Men's Association last night, a resolution was adopted congratulating Dr. Gregg on his election to the Archbishopric of Dublin.

THE O'CONOR DON RESIGNS.

The O'Conor Don has addressed the following letter to the Lord Chancellor:—

Clonalis, Castlerea, 8th September, 1920.

MY LORD,—I beg to inform your Lordship that I wish to resign my Deputy Lieutenancy and J.P.-ships for the County of Roscommon, as I no longer desire to have any connection with His Majesty's Government in Ireland. My short experience of the British Government in Ireland shows me that it is incapable, as at present constituted, of understanding the true feeling of the country or of grasping the real consequences of its own acts, which are leading it into a morass and the country to ruin.—I remain, my Lord, yours sincerely,

O'CONOR DON.

CAPTAIN D. T. J. SHERLOCK.

Captain D. T. J. Sherlock, M.B.E., has been appointed a Judicial Commissioner for British North Borneo. Captain Sherlock was called to the Irish Bar in 1906, and is a member of the Munster Circuit. He joined His Majesty's Forces in 1914, and served through the war with the Royal Irish Regiment.

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

BOLSHEVIST GOLD.

The Times in a leading article comments on the offer of £75,000 to the Daily Herald, and the request of that paper for the opinion of its readers on the question whether it should accept the Bolshevist gold. The only reason, says the writer, against acceptance which is considered valid is that "it seems pitiable that we should be in this Great Britain should also be associated in the public mind with the Alliance marks the emancipation of Belgium from the shackles of neutrality. Henceforward Belgium is an equal among equals, and can discuss with France any and every question on a footing of complete equality. The conclusion of the Alliance was announced, as the Temps remarks, with an emphasis in which the two countries are standing for a common policy. It has long been known that France had grave objections to the General Conference. France has, therefore, the more gladly welcomed the Belgian proposal that the German offers should be submitted to the Reparation Commission rather than discussed at Geneva.

THE POSITION IN ITALY.

Although admitting that there is at yet no improvement in the troubled Labour situation which has disturbed the economic and political life of Italy for several months, The Times in a leading article observes that the Italian affairs should be cautious in drawing hasty conclusions from the present Italian turmoil. Italy has decided, become worse before they are better, but we trust that the sound sense of the Italian people, which has so often triumphed over apparently insuperable difficulties, will in the long run again assert itself. Yet the need for courageous moral leadership will remain, and if it is to guide Italy back to the paths of prosperity, it must tend in the direction from which she so disastrously swerved two years ago.

THE COAL STRIKE MENACE.

There was no fresh development in the coal situation yesterday, but it would be a mistaken view to assume that the last word has been said, and that a strike is now inevitable, says a Labour Correspondent in The Times. The Government, it is stated, has no further offer to make. But the constructive proposals put forward by Sir Robert Horne at the conference on Thursday provide at least an opportunity for the Government when they think the moment is opportune for the next move in the contest.

M. KAMENEFF GOING TO RUSSIA.

The Times states that M. Kameneff leaves England for Russia to-day. M. Krassin remains in London. M. Kameneff and M. Krassin had an interview with Mr. Lloyd George at 10 Downing street yesterday afternoon. It is stated that this meeting had been arranged not merely in view of M. Kameneff's impending departure, but for the discussion of proposals for the opening of big commercial negotiations with Russia. It is further reported that Mr. Lloyd George submitted various considerations which the British Government wish M. Kameneff to lay before his colleagues in Russia.

BOLSHEVIST DELEGATION IN NORWAY.

The Christiania Correspondent of The Times, in a message dated September 9, says:—The Bolshevist delegation, which arrived last week en route for England, where they had refused admission, leave to-night for Bergen, where they intend to take passage for Germany. Their permission to stay in Norway expired yesterday. M. Litvinoff and another Bolshevik agent are still here. Their official purpose is to promote business connections between Russia and North Norway. They seem, however, in no particular hurry to arrange business. It is unlikely, however, that they will be allowed to protract their stay.

GERMAN TRAFFIC IN ARMS.

The Berlin Correspondent of The Times learns from a very trustworthy German source that in certain quarters of Germany large purchases of arms and ammunition have recently been made, and these arms and ammunition are stealthily being sent to Russia by sea.

SOPWITH'S WORKS CLOSED.

The Sopwith Aviation and Engineering Company Ltd., have decided to close their works at Kingston-on-Thames and to go into voluntary liquidation, thus rendering 1,400 employés idle, says The Times.

THE MUNITIONS STRIKE.

REMARKABLE INCIDENT IN DUBLIN.

A man, stated to be an engine driver on the Great Northern Railway, and a native of Belfast, was yesterday morning set upon by a number of men in Amiens street, Dublin, handcuffed, and chained to an electric light standard, a card being attached to him bearing the word "scab," and accusing him of being one of the men who had driven munition trains.

It appears that the man arrived in Dublin yesterday morning on an engine from Belfast, and paid a visit to a house in Amiens street. As he left he was seized by a number of men, quickly handcuffed with his hands forced behind his back, taken to an electric light standard at the corner of Talbot street and Amiens street, facing the Great Northern Railway Station, and securely chained to it. The chain was passed over the body, across the ribs, and between the arms, and was tightened and locked in such a way that the victim could not release himself. Some time later policemen, having observed a crowd near the electric light standard, investigated the cause, and released him. They accompanied him to Store street Police Station, where the handcuffs were taken off.

GOVERNOR COX AND IRELAND.

Reuter's New York Correspondent says:—A telegram from Spokane, Washington, states that, speaking at Butte (Montana), on Thursday, Governor Cox, Democratic candidate for the Presidency, referring to the Irish question, said—It will be my duty, and I shall very quickly avail myself of it, as a friend of peace, to assert the right of every member of the League of Nations to present its case to the attention of the League, and to give Ireland, or any other aggrieved people, an opportunity to plead its cause before the bar of civilised opinon.

THE BELFAST RIOTS.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF THE OUTBREAK.

Charles O'Neill, of Glenpark street, Belfast, died yesterday from a bullet wound, received during the recent riots. This brings the death roll up to thirty-two.

The Mayflower Tercentenary celebrations at Plymouth terminated yesterday. American guests visited Plymouth reservoirs, Dartmoor, and Buckland Abbey, where they viewed Drake's Drum and other relics. Gala performances took place in the theatres.

DISARMAMENT OF GERMANY.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS,

SURRENDER AND DESTRUCTION OF ARMS.

Reuter's Agency learns that the latest returns received from the Allied Commission of Control in Germany show that the surrender and destruction of German arms, as provided for by the Treaty, is proceeding in an entirely satisfactory manner. This is especially the case as regards guns. The latest figures show that a week ago there were 6,000 guns to be destroyed. During the previous fortnight the destruction had been going on at the rate of a thousand guns weekly. Altogether, in a period of eight weeks, 7,500 guns had been surrendered or destroyed by the Commission, the total number given up to date being 27,000. At the present rate of progress Germany will, by November, possess no guns beyond those allowed by the Treaty. As regards machine-guns, 25,000 have been destroyed, and 35,000 remain. Of live shells 13,000,000 have been destroyed, and 16,000,000 have still to be dealt with. Of a total of 11,000 Minenwerfer (trench mortars), 5,000 have been handed over. So far 1,400,000 rifles and carbines have been destroyed, leaving a balance of 300,000. With regard to the large number of rifles that are hidden away in various parts of the country, the German Government is carrying out the arrangement suggested at Spa of offering rewards, and notices are being displayed, that the Commission realises the difficulty which the authorities have in obtaining possession, or knowing the whereabouts of these arms. 130,000,000 rounds of small arms ammunition have been destroyed, and 220,000,000 still remain. At Essen the officers of the Commission are exercising the utmost vigilance. There is no reason to suppose that any war material is being turned out without their knowledge, and the latest report shows that the output does not exceed that permitted.

LITHUANIA AND POLAND.

NEW PROPOSALS.

A Paris telegram states:—It is reported in Berlin that the Poles have rejected the proposal of Lithuania to refer the matters in dispute for settlement to the Riga Conference. The Poles announce that 143,000 Bolsheviks in East Prussia have neither been interned nor disarmed.

The Lithuanian Government, says a Kovno telegram, has made a new proposal to the Polish Government to meet the Polish delegates at Mariampol in order to establish a demarcation line which would leave Suwalki to Poland and Seinj to Lithuania. The Lithuanian Government has also addressed a formal request to the Allies to appoint an Allied Commission on the spot the Polish allegations that the Lithuanians are collaborating with the Bolsheviks and failing to observe neutrality.

According to a Warsaw telegram, Prince Sapieha, Foreign Minister, has informed M. Tchicherin that the Polish Peace Delegation will leave Danzig for Riga by the first steamer, which is due to leave on the 12th inst.

AMBASSADORS' CONFERENCE.

THE POSITION IN ITALY.

The Conference of Ambassadors has decided, says a Paris telegram, to send German representatives to Danzig in the Kiel Canal. It has considered the German Note protesting against the decisions of the Allies following upon the Spa Conference. It has also considered means of ensuring the application of Article 260 of the Treaty of Versailles, relating to the free export of Luxemburg productions destined for Germany.

MESOPOTAMIA.

HELP FROM INDIA.

The War Office announces that a column of the 34th Brigade, commanded by Brigadier-General E. B. Conyngham, started from Bakuba on September 6th, to operate in a north-easterly direction along the Persian Railway, reaching the Hawa, twelve miles away, without opposition. A column of the 75th Infantry Brigade covers the line of communication with the 34th Brigade column. The name of the officer commanding this column has not yet been reported. A column commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Greer, Royal Irish Fusiliers, including the 13th British Mountain Battery, and the 1st Royal Irish Fusiliers, with a machine gun section, set out from Kisilrobat on September 6th, with the object of operating in a south-westerly direction, towards the 34th Brigade column. A small column under the command of the Officer Commanding the 55th Brigade, is operating in the Museyib-Hindie area. His Majesty's Government has accepted the generous offer of the Maharajah of Kapurtala to place the Kapurtala Infantry at the disposal of the General Officer Commanding in Mesopotamia for service in that country. The unit will sail from India shortly.

VICTORIA CROSS AWARDS.

IRISH OFFICER'S GALLANTRY.

The London Gazette announces that the His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve of the award of the Victoria Cross to the undermentioned officer:—

The late temporary Captain John Henry Andrews, M.B.E., Indian Medical Service.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty on the 2nd October, 1919, when as Senior Medical Officer in charge of Khajuri Post (Waziristan) he heard that a convoy had been attacked in the vicinity of the post, and that most heavy fighting was in progress. He at once took an aid post to the scene of action, and, approaching under heavy fire, established an aid post under conditions which afforded some protection to the wounded, but not to himself. Subsequently he was compelled to move his aid post to another position, and continued most devotedly to attend to the wounded. Finally, when a Ford van was available to convey the wounded, he showed the utmost disregard of danger in collecting the wounded under fire and in placing them in the van, and was eventually killed whilst himself engaged into the van on the completion of his task.

The late Lieutenant William David Kenny, 4/39th Garhwal Rifles, Indian Army.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty near Kot Kai (Waziristan) on the 2nd January, 1920, when in command of a company holding an advanced covering position, which was repeatedly attacked by the Mahsuds in greatly superior numbers. For over four hours this officer maintained his position, repulsing three determined attacks, being foremost in the hand-to-hand fighting which took place, and repeatedly engaging the enemy with bomb and bayonet. His gallant leadership undoubtedly saved the situation, and kept intact the right flank, on which depended the success of the operations and the safety of the troops in rear. In the subsequent withdrawal, recognising that a diversion was necessary to enable the withdrawal of the company, which was imperilled, to be effected, with a handful of his men he turned back and counter-attacked the pursuing enemy, and, with the rest of his party, was killed fighting to the last. This very gallant act of self-sacrifice not only enabled the wounded to be withdrawn, but also averted a situation which must have resulted in considerable loss of life.

Lieutenant Kenny was a son of Constable J. J. Kenny, Donaghadee, Co. Down. Describing the deeds for which he recommended the award of the Victoria Cross, the Colonel of the regiment writes:—"For four and a half hours he fought with his company against heavy odds and an enemy much superior in numbers, and this in spite of severe casualties. Three times he beat back heavy attacks at close quarters, himself using bombs and rifles, and bayoneting the enemy. He undoubtedly saved the whole situation. When the time came for withdrawal, and he was going back with the rest of his men, he saw some wounded who could not get away. Although he might quite honourably have remained with his company headquarters, he returned with a handful of men and charged the enemy, and by this deed of wonderful heroism and self-sacrifice not only saved the wounded, but prevented the whole position from becoming involved in a serious situation. He was last seen fighting with a kukri in one hand and a revolver in the other till he end his men were surrounded and killed."

The late Lieutenant Kenny was educated at Dublin School, Dublin, and was in his twenty-first year. He joined the Indian Army in 1917.

THE QUEEN VISITS ABERDEEN.

The Queen and Princess Mary motored into Aberdeen yesterday, and paid an informal visit to the Art Gallery and the Marischal College, afterwards lunching with the Principal, Sir George Adam Smith, and Lady Smith.

After luncheon, the Royal visitors and party, accompanied by Sir George Adam Smith and the Lord Provost, motored to the King's College, one of the oldest colleges in Scotland, this being the first visit of a Queen since that paid by Mary Queen of Scots in 1562. A visit was next spent the River Don near its mouth. The Queen walked over the bridge and admired its picturesque setting. After tea the Royal party left for Balmoral, visiting Blairs Roman Catholic College, near Aberdeen, en route.

The appointment was gazetted last night of Mr. John Middleton, Colonial Secretary of Mauritius, to be Governor of the Falkland Islands and its dependencies.

GALWAY SHOOTINGS.

MILITARY INQUEST OPENED.

THE ATTACK ON CONSTABLE CROMM.

WARRANT FOR ABSENT WITNESS.

Our Galway Correspondent telegraphs:—

Major E. Yeldham, Captain J. N. Preston White, and Captain E. Lindsey Young opened an inquest at Renmore Depôt yesterday afternoon into the circumstances attending the deaths of Seaumas Quirke, James Mulroy, and Constable Edward Cromm. This was stated to be the first inquest of the kind held under the new Orders. In the case of Quirke, only Dr. W. A. Sandys attended to give evidence, and the proceedings were adjourned to see if further evidence would be obtained.

In reply to Head Constable Daly, Dr. Sandys stated that his house was raided for arms on the night of the murder.

In the case of Cromm, Head Constable Daly read a sensational statement made by a Mr. Christopher Yorke, a chauffeur. Yorke was with Cromm on the night of the shooting, but did not turn up at the inquest, and Head Constable Daly said that he had gone to Ballina, but all efforts to locate him there had failed. In a statement signed at Eglinton street Barrack after the occurrence he said that he had known Cromm, who was a Royal Irish Constabulary motor driver, for a few weeks. As they left the railway station with the papers, someone in front of him (Yorke) said, "Hands up!" and presented a revolver at him. He put up his hands, and saw Cromm struggling with a man that shouted for help. Two or three did come to his help. Yorke heard a number of shots, and saw a revolver in the hand of one man, as well as in the hand of the man who held him up. He saw Cromm falling, and another man fall with him. He was searched, and was told to go away. He went to Baker's hotel, and was followed. There were small knots of young men standing about.

Miss Baker said that Cromm went out with Yorke to get the papers at the train, as he was interested in Spion Kop, which was running in the St. Leger.

The inquest was adjourned for the attendance of Yorke, for whom a warrant was issued.

The inquest on Mulvoy was also postponed to see if any other evidence would be available.

"CURFEW" ORDER ENFORCED.

Following the outbreak in Galway on Thursday morning, Brigadier-General J. G. Chaplain, D.S.O., the new Competent Military Authority, who has just established Brigade Headquarters at Renmore Depôt, has issued the following official notice:—

"Curfew" Order from 9 p.m. until 4 a.m.

The Order, which is made under Regulation 13 of the Restoration of Order in Ireland Regulations, applies as from Friday night, only a few hours' notice being given, and concerns the portion of the urban district which lies on the left or east bank of the Corrib.

The city was yesterday in deep mourning. A holiday was proclaimed, and no work of any kind was permitted. A special permit was granted to the Connacht Tribune to enable the city edition to be issued.

DISPLAY AT VOLUNTEERS' FUNERAL.

Most of the inhabitants attended the Requiem Mass celebrated in the Roman Catholic Cathedral for James Quirke and John Mulvoy, whose coffins rested on a catafalque side by side, enfolded in silken Republican flags. Quirke's cap and uniform rested on the coffin, and on the latter was a scroll, bearing an inscription which showed that he belonged to "A" Company, 1st Galway Battalion, 1st Galway Brigade.

The Most Rev. Dr. O'Dea, Roman Catholic Bishop of Galway, presided at the High Mass, and over forty priests attended. Before the last Gospel Rev. Father Burke, C.C., acting as deacon, came forward and asked for the prayers of the congregation for the deceased, adding—"May their souls and the souls of all true men rest in peace."

A funeral procession of 10,000 people, headed by the Bishop and priests, passed through the streets and wended its way to the cemetery at Temple, where Mulvoy was interred.

At the gate of the cemetery Quirke's coffin was transferred by Volunteers to a waiting motor car, and taken under escort to Cork. A volley was fired over the grave.

FUNERAL OF THE POLICE VICTIM.

Scarcely had the funeral procession passed through the city streets when the remains of Constable Cromm were taken on a police lorry from Eglinton street Police Station, and, accompanied by sixty armed policemen, under County Inspector Rutledge and District Inspectors Cruise and Hall, and a party of military, conveyed to the mail train en route for Dublin. Wreaths were placed on the coffin from Cromm's comrades in the Royal Irish Constabulary. As the train steamed out police and military presented arms, and the people on the platform raised their hats.

The remains of the late Constable Edward Cromm, a native of Wimbledon, were sent across Channel from Dublin last night. The coffin containing the remains was brought from the Broadstone to the military motor ambulance, and was accompanied into Kingsbridge station by the North Wall the remains were transferred to the outgoing London and North-Western Railway express steamer Connaught Carraghmore, for conveyance to Holyhead, whence they would be railed to London for interment at Wimbledon.

His assailants informed him that they had intercepted correspondence showing that he was a candidate for the position of District Inspector in the Royal Irish Constabulary.

MURDER OF POLICEMEN IN TULLOW.

SERGEANT'S EVIDENCE AT INQUEST.

THE BURNINGS IN THE TOWN.

At an inquest held yesterday in Tullow (County Carlow) on the bodies of Constable Delaney and Constable Gaughan, Sergeant Warrington deposed that he and the constables mentioned were attacked by armed and masked men about 100 yards from the police barrack. While they were returning one of the attacking party shouted "Hands up," and firing started immediately. Constables Delaney and Gaughan were fatally wounded, and Constable O'Halloran was dangerously wounded.

Dr. Michael McCarthy stated that Constable Gaughan's death was due to extensive hemorrhage and shock, and, in Constable Delaney's case, that death was caused by rupture of the heart and hemorrhage.

THE JURY'S VERDICT.

The jury returned a verdict that the constables met their death from revolver or gunshot wounds, inflicted by some person or persons unknown. They tendered their sincere sympathy to the relatives, and added a rider dissociating themselves from a policy of attacking the police.

OUTBREAK OF INCENDIARISM.

Our Carlow Correspondent states:—About 10 o'clock on Thursday night the streets of Tullow were cleared of people, and a rifle shot was a signal to the inhabitants that something unusual was happening. Soon afterwards a volley of shots was fired, and the extensive premises of Messrs. Murphy Bros. were attacked. There was a terrific explosion, and in a few minutes the entire building was in flames. The licensed premises of Messrs. Murphy and Sons were then attacked. The plate glass windows were smashed, and it is stated that petrol was used to set the building on fire. Both premises, which were the most extensive business houses in the town, contained a valuable stock, all of which was destroyed. Mr. D. Neavyn's licensed premises were also partially wrecked and a large quantity of stock was looted.

The Carlow Fire Brigade, conveyed in Mr. Governey's motor lorries, arrived at 1 o'clock in the morning, and rendered valuable service in staying the progress of the flames.

THE RECENT FIGHT FOR DONEGAL MAILS.

RAIDER REPORTED KILLED.

Our Derry Correspondent states:—A report has reached Derry in connection with the encounter at the wayside halt at Drimbar between ten Republicans raiding the mails on the train and Mr. Henry Forbes, traffic superintendent on the Donegal Railway. Singlehanded Mr. Forbes drove off the raiders, discharging the contents of his five-chambered revolver, at them. One of the raiders was captured, but, in addition to this, it is now reported that on the exchange of fire one of the raiding party was shot dead and a third badly wounded. Some hours after the occurrence men were seen carrying away the bodies of two men through a cornfield across which the raiders retreated. No confirmation can be obtained of this report.

THOUGHTS AND THEORIES.

or electricity is available. They serve the purpose quite as well as a gas stove, but are troublesome to light and dangerous in the hands of absent-minded people. We have all owned a stove at one time or another—and know the creature I mean. First, you fill a receptacle with methylated spirits. This is not as easy as it sounds, because cooks always keep all guinnesses in the methylated spirit bottle and the methylated spirits on a shelf in the scullery where the cat cannot get at it. Anyway, having found the methylated, you pour it into the receptacle thereunto provided and light it up. As soon as the methylated spirits has burned itself out, the kitchen (if you have remembered to put it on) should begin to gasefy, catch light automatically, and burn with a steady, brilliant and intensely hot flame. (See the book of the words.) The sausages should begin to frizzle agreeably.

I forgot to mention that there is a sort of little valve somewhere that you unscrew at some psychological point in the proceedings, and a jolly little gurgle that you twiddle two or three times just to get the knack of it, and you are away. What really happens is that you fill the methylated spirit receptacle two or three times and methylated spirits then, in despair, you pump energetically for about ten minutes, as the same time applying a match to the place where you think the flame ought to be. Smoke is then observed to be issuing from the kitchen-dresser and, while your head is turned, the whole jolly stove bursts into flame and fills the house with black smoke and a bad smell. You go for a take and a pail of cold water, and when you get back the stove has stopped playing, and sits there looking as if butter would not melt in its mouth. When you take it back to the ironmonger he declares that his wife has used one for seven years, and has never had any trouble with it. You believe him. Not having seen his wife, you can scarcely do otherwise. There are some women who never have trouble with inanimate objects. They just give them one look.

If we had no zeal, we could beat our houses quite easily with high-pressure hot-water pipes, oil fuel being the heating medium in either case. Briquettes of peat and fuel oil, hydraulically compressed, make an excellent substitute for coal, in open grates. The oil could be landed in tankers on the west coast of Ireland at some point conveniently adjacent to the bogs. The Shannon would supply the water-power and the bogs would supply the peat. The Irish Volunteers (always supposing the Irish question to have been settled in the meantime) would find a useful, as well as an agreeable, occupation ready to their hands. The briquettes thus manufactured would be sold in London at a handsome profit, and another economic link in the chain of Anglo-Irish friendship would be forged.

There is something else they do with crude oil in California that is worth mentioning. They spray it on the roads and railway tracks to lay the dust. It imparts to the country a very typical and unforgettable smell, which blends nicely with sage-brush and tar-weed. It seems a pity that this practice could not be adopted to our own needs. I do not know how long the Belfast riots have been in progress, how many lives have been lost, how much property damaged, how much money spent in preserving that which still remains intact. But I declare and insist that the whole might have been avoided if only the Belfast Corporation had had a few sky-sprayers and driven them through the Falls road, Shankill road, and other no man's lands. A kidney-shaped paving stone is a handy weapon that the heart of an Irishman finds it hard to resist. I am told that the Belfast streets are invitingly littered with them. But it takes a man of fanatical enthusiasm to fumble for, and to stampede around, with a sticky black tar or to stampede around, with a sticky black tar or to stampede around, with a sticky black tar measuring his length in it, through streets running with adhesive and irremovable pitch. Therefore, I declare again, that a little foresight and a tar-sprayer would have prevented the war in Belfast. I am not sure that it would not help to stop the war in several other places.

A MAN OF LETTERS.

Were my Order of Good Fellowship to be established, men of letters would balk large among its prospective candidates; for no one has such an unparalleled opportunity for making two smiles grow where one grew before or of pouring the oil of human kindness into the creaking machinery of civilisation. I exclude the journalists—properly so called—as a man, not men of letters, but ghouls of the printing press, the Niebelungen of human intercourse. Let them continue to "slew with slaughter." It is of the leisurely and contemplative series that I am thinking—the genial gentleman who alternate between the typewriter and the library sofa, who lunch at their club, dine, when the spirit moves them, at the Cheshire Cheese, and spend one day a week writing our receipts for comfortable royalties. They have only one enemy—the critic—and, be it known fellow, can really do them very little mischief because the public know that he has an ingrowing grudge against anybody who dares to be happy. The men of letters, I think, are fading, as they do, almost ideal lives, should not only be happy—as the day is long, they should be the prime proprietors of happiness for others. Largely they are, though there is still room for improvement. Certain classes of them, notably historians and biographers, take themselves far too seriously. On the whole, however, the man of letters do more than any other class except vaudeville artists.

First among the men of letters in this respect I class the kindly and perspicacious dramatists and novelists who make possible, and even ennoble by their gentle humour, the atrophying miseries of our humdrum existences. Tristia inter pares in this genial galaxy I place Alfred V. Lucas, whose latest volume, "Verena in the Middle," I recently snatched a moment to devour. Mr. Lucas has been writing happy books ever since I can remember. Frankly I do not know how he does it. Verena is the writer and recipient of letters—all, with one or two exceptions, interposed for the sake of relief, written by happy people. If the world were peopled by the sort of persons whom Mr. Lucas puts into his books, there would be no Irish Question, no Polish Question, no Jewish Question, and no questions in Parliament. But there is more to it than that. Mr. Lucas always quotes my favourite poets and generally my favourite quotations. And that for me, at any rate, it produces an agreeable association. The strange thing is that all others declare that they like him for the same reason—for his favourite authors and their favourite quotations. Which indicates a subtle genius for pleasing, that is subtle and profound.

I find Mr. Lucas declaring (through the mouth of one of his junior characters) that the proper procedure on one's birthday is to stay in bed as long as one likes and have sausages for breakfast. How did he discover this truth? All really nice families, especially those with large numbers of girls in them, regard this as an essential ceremony on a birthday. But it takes a philosopher like Mr. Lucas to see the thing in its proper magnitude, as one of the profoundest truths of life. You can buy "Verena" for eight-and-sixpence, and, if you are the right kind of person, you will get eight pounds ten shillings worth of value out of it.

THE ENGLISH PRINTING DISPUTE.

The Liverpool Echo and Express, in yesterday's photomicrographed issue, dealing with the latest contention of the strikers, that they are not on strike, but locked out, states that this is an afterthought. In proof thereof the journal reproduces a circular letter, sent by Mr. George Nelson, Secretary of the Liverpool Typographical Society, dated August 13th, in which he states that, by arrangements with the employers, it had been agreed to raise the embargo on overtime, and the employers, on their part, withdrawing all lock-out notices, and that members would, therefore, resume normal conditions until further notice. It will be seen from this that lock-out notices were withdrawn, not suspended, and that the local Secretary of the recalcitrant branch understood the matter.

News sheets of the combined Liverpool Echo and Express appeared on Saturday afternoon and evening, the maximum supplies being issued over the whole of the extensive area covered by the local journals. The Liverpool Weekly Courier resumed publication yesterday, despite the continuance of the strike.

The Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress have arranged a meeting at Manchester on Monday, between the local branches of the Typographical Association and their Executive, to endeavour to reach a settlement of the dispute.

COURTMARTIAL IN DUBLIN.

SEQUEL TO SEARCHES AT RINGSEND.

ALLEGED POSSESSION OF AMMUNITION.

A district courtmartial, over which Major Grover, 1st Battalion King's Own Royal Lancaster Regiment, presided, assembled at Wellington Barracks, Dublin, yesterday, for the trial of the following civilians—

Frederick Maloney, 42 Emerald square.

James Maguire, 28 Irishtown road.

Joseph Curran, 36 Stella Gardens.

Denis Brennan, 37 Stella Gardens.

The Court having been constituted, each of the accused stated that as a citizen of the Irish Republic he did not recognise the military authority, but had no objection to any of the members personally.

Denis Brennan was charged with contravening the orders of the Competent Military Authority by being in possession of eighteen rounds of .22 ammunition at his house, 37 Stella Gardens, on the 3rd September.

Accused refused to plead, but said that he reserved the right to question witnesses appearing for the prosecution.

The President said that, of course, accused had that right. A plea of "not guilty" was entered.

Captain W. Newberry, The Queen's Royal West Surrey Regiment, attached Headquarters, Dublin District, prosecuted, and proved the terms of the regulations.

The accused said that he wanted all the persons who took part in the raid to be called, as he wished to examine them. Two officers were in the party, but he understood that only one was to give evidence.

The President asked if accused wished to call witnesses for the defence. The witnesses for the prosecution would be called first. Accused could question them, and call any other witnesses he liked.

Lieutenant D. F. Barnard, 2nd Batalion the Worcestershire Regiment, said that, with a party of military, he visited the house 37 Stella Gardens. Denis Brennan opened the door, and witness sent him into an upper room whilst the search of the lower rooms took place. In a sofa he found a small cardboard box (produced), containing 18 rounds of .22 ammunition.

Cross-examined by accused, witness said that he was in command. A captain acted as guide to the party, but witness did not know the name of this officer. The door of the room in which the ammunition was found was open. Witness followed accused upstairs with a revolver.

Sergeant Tuton, Worcestershire Regiment, corroborated.

The accused said that he had no witnesses to call. In a statement he said that evidence had been given to show that the door of the room in which the ammunition was found was open, but he had left it closed. There was another officer with the party, who could have put the ammunition there, and should be called to prove that he had not done so. Accused said that he knew nothing about the ammunition, and had never seen it before.

The finding of the Court will be promulgated in due course.

CHARGE AGAINST URBAN COUNCILLOR.

Joseph Curran, a member of the Pembroke Urban District Council, was charged with the possession of a revolver and seven rounds of revolver ammunition, on the 3rd September, contrary to the regulations of the Competent Military Authority. A plea of "not guilty" was recorded.

Lieutenant L. M. Rudge, M.C., M.M., 2nd Battalion, Worcestershire Regiment, said that on the morning of the 3rd September he commanded a party of soldiers and a police officer and visited the house No. 36 Stella Gardens. Under the mattress of a bed in an upper room one of the party found seven rounds of ammunition (produced), and in a kitchen dresser they found the revolver (produced) on the top of a press, amongst some books. Witness drew the attention of Amherst to these things, and he answered that he knew nothing about the ammunition, and that the revolver was an old relic which belonged to a relative.

Questioned by accused, witness said that another officer was with him on the occasion. He did not know his name, Lance-Sergeant Smith actually found the ammunition. Witness, the sergeant, the other officer, and a policeman went upstairs.

Accused—How can you explain that the sergeant took half an hour searching the bed before the policeman came up to see the ammunition found?

Witness—The ammunition was found by the policeman within ten minutes of entering the room.

Accused—Was the policeman there when the ammunition was found?

Witness—No. The ammunition was shown to the policeman directly he entered the room.

The accused was put in another room whilst the search was in progress, so that he should not impede the military, and also for safe custody.

The Prosecutor asked if witness or any of his party brought the ammunition into the house.

Witness answered that he did not, and that, to the best of his knowledge, none of his party did so.

Lance-Sergeant A. F. Smith, Worcestershire Regiment, said that he found seven rounds of ammunition between the matting and wire frame of a bed. He saw Lieutenant Rudge find the revolver.

Questioned by accused, witness said that when he entered the front bedroom the officer in command, another officer whom he did not know, and a policeman were already there.

Pressed by accused, witness said that he was not absolutely sure that the policeman was there, but he was when the ammunition was found. He could not know why the other officer was not being called to give evidence. He himself did not put the ammunition in the bed, nor did he see any of his party do so. He was not quite sure how it got there. Frankly, he could not say how he does it. Verena is the writer and recipient of letters—all, with one or two exceptions, interposed for the sake of relief, written by happy people. If the world were peopled by the sort of persons whom Mr. Lucas puts into his books, there would be no Irish Question, no Polish Question, no Jewish Question, and no questions in Parliament. But there is more to it than that. Mr. Lucas always quotes my favourite poets and generally my favourite quotations. And that for me, at any rate, it produces an agreeable association. The strange thing is that all others declare that they like him for the same reason—for his favourite authors and their favourite quotations. Which indicates a subtle genius for pleasing, that is subtle and profound.

Corporal Wilson, Worcestershire Regiment, corroborated.

The accused said that he had no witnesses to call. In a statement he said that evidence had been given to show that the door of the room in which the ammunition was found was open, but he had left it closed. There was another officer with the party, who could have put the ammunition there, and should be called to prove that he had not done so. Accused said that he knew nothing about the ammunition, and had never seen it before.

The finding of the Court will be promulgated in due course.

He was not quite sure how it got there. Frankly, he could not say how he does it.

Re-examined by Prosecutor, the witness said that he understood the question to be the policeman's presence related to the time when the ammunition was found. The policeman was not there when he first entered the room, but was present when the ammunition was found.

A constable of the Dublin Metropolitan Police said that he was with the party on the occasion of the raid. An officer and a sergeant went upstairs, but he remained downstairs for about twenty minutes, when he was sent for and went up to the front bedroom. He saw the ammunition found by the sergeant, and afterwards he saw the revolver found by the officer in a kitchen. Replying to the accused, witness said that there was a third person with the officer and sergeant, but he did not know who he was.

Accused said that he had no witnesses to call, and stated that he was of opinion that there was a conspiracy against him to get him convicted. The position was not in the house before the raiding party entered. He believed that it was brought in there by the raiders.

Nobody seemed to know the name of a man who took an active part in the search. The revolver was an old and useless weapon with which his children used to play.

The finding will be promulgated.

The Court adjourned until this morning.

THE STATE OF IRELAND.

CO. WEXFORD MAGISTRATES AND SELF-GOVERNMENT.

GENERAL RESIGNATION PROPOSAL DEFERRED.

A meeting of the magistrates of the County Wexford, convened by the Earl of Courtown, H.M.L., was held in the Chamber of Commerce, Wexford, on Thursday. About forty magistrates were present.

Lord Courtown, who presided, said that they were all agreed that the present condition of affairs was most unsatisfactory and deplorable, and that anything that could be done to help prove it should be done. Some of those present were in favour of a Republican form of government, some for Dominion Home Rule, some for the Home Rule Act on the Statute Book, some for Mr. Lloyd George's Home Rule proposals, and others for maintaining the Act of Union, but he ventured to say that all were actuated by a desire to improve the state of the country which they all loved so dearly, and which they did not want to lapse into anarchy and chaos. He thought that it would be well to pass a resolution calling on the Government to do something to meet the desire of the majority of the Irish people, giving them control over all local affairs, including taxation.

Lieutenant-Colonel L. A. Bryan (President, Co. Wexford Farmers' Union) proposed the following resolution:—"That in our opinion the repeal of the Act of Union offers the best prospects for the pacification and satisfactory future government of the Kingdom of Ireland." Colonel Bryan said that any of the suggestions made in other counties on this matter did not go sufficiently to the root of the question. Many believed that the Act of Union, if properly carried out, would have been best for Ireland, but all should confess that they had never yet given a chance. Ireland as a whole was calling for a settlement that would have proper regard for nationality feeling and that would safeguard the economic interests of the country—a settlement that would give the country peace and prosperity. Suggestions had been made that it should take the form of a Dominion. Ireland was never a Dominion, and he hoped that it never would be. Ireland had always been a Kingdom, and was one still, although incorporated in the United Kingdom. The repeal of the Union, with the Duke of Connaught, the Earl of Cavan, or the Earl of Athlone, the Heir to the Throne of England as King of Ireland offered the best chance of a union of Irishmen. The economic interests of the country demanded that there should be absolute Irish independence for Ireland, and the repeal of the Union would give this, as there was an Act in existence, which had never been repealed, by which the Parliament of Great Britain absolutely disclaimed all power or control over Ireland.

Mr. J. W. E. Jackson seconded.

Alderman G. Hadden proposed—"We, the magistrates of County Wexford, deplore the state of affairs existing in the North and South, and regard with apprehension the continuance and spread of the present condition of affairs. We record our conviction that the only path to the restoration of goodwill among the peoples lies in the direction of the fullest measure of self-government for Ireland within the Empire, with generous financial provisions and county option for Ulster. We believe that such a course will commend itself to a very large section of moderate opinion in this country, and we are not without hope that a boldly conceived measure along these lines, if aided by the Government, would be accepted by all parties as a solution of the age-long difficulties of this country." Alderman Hadden said that between the extreme sections in the country there was a vast body of moderate opinion, and the time had come to rally that voice. It was a happy sign to find that there was even in the ranks of those for men holding such divergent views as they had at the meeting. It was stated by one of the Sinn Fein leaders that the Unionists had taken such a big step towards the majority that a little step further would bring them the whole way. Surely those who had made no step in any other direction would meet the advancing half-way.

Mr. J. E. Barry seconded.

Mr. E. Doyle said that the Irish people would accept a broad scheme of settlement under the Crown. It might be thought that they were offering very little to England for such a concession, but they would give her something that would prove invaluable in time to come—viz., the friendship of Ireland the world over. If England dealt generously with this country, Ireland would be friendly disposed towards her, and she would have her rights respected all over the world in those countries where the Irish race was predominant.

Mr. W. C. Skrine said that the matter before them was how were they going to restore law and order in Ireland? Three-fourths of the Irish population were in the position of a drowning man. A man in such a plight was not concerned with what he would do if rescued; his sole concern was to be rescued. Hence there was no use in considering schemes of settlement. What the three-fourths of Ireland wanted was law and order, and the only way to establish order was by backing the law as it stood. The Government was seeking every way in which to pacify Ireland, and was prepared to give Ireland anything so long as Irishmen could agree on what they wanted, and did not seek to leave the Empire. Resolutions such as those proposed were only weakening the hands of the Government. Instead of hampering the Government, they should back it.

Mr. M. C. Cleeve said that there was no use in making suggestions to the Government, as protests and appeals had been made in even the most influential quarters, but in vain.

Col. Bryan's resolution was put to the meeting and defeated by 25 votes to 10.

Alderman Hadden's resolution was then put and passed, the only dissentients being Mr. Skrine and Capt. C. C. Harvey. A committee, consisting of Lord Courtown, Col. C. M. Gibbon, Lieut.-Col. Bryan, Alderman Hadden, Alderman James Sinnott, and Mr K. Byrne, was appointed to get in touch with the Standing Committee of the "Irish Peace Conference" and other Irish bodies in order to push forward a scheme for the future self-government of Ireland.

Mr. Cloney proposed, and Mr. Joseph O'Connor seconded, a resolution calling on the magistrates of the county to resign immediately, as protests and appeals to the British Government were futile.

Mr. Asple proposed as an amendment that consideration of the general resignation resolution be deferred pending a definite reply from the Government as to the future government of Ireland.

Col. Bryan, seconding, said that if the existing conditions continued they should dissociate themselves from the odium attaching to the suggestion that they had any part in the lack of government.

The amendment was carried.

Mystery surrounds the finding of the body of a man on the beach at Sutton yesterday. The body is that of a man aged about forty years. He was 5 feet 11 inches in height, and wore a brown coat, grey trousers, and black shoes and socks. Beside the body was found a lady's Ridge-Whitworth bicycle. The man has not yet been identified.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—There is virtually no religious intolerance in Ireland. Let me explain the paradox. Every man who thinks at all must form some theory as to the meaning of the universe. This is his theology or creed. Modern education tends towards a broad toleration of such theories by showing how very uncertain and inadequate are the data upon which we all build our theological speculations. The effect of our theory of the universe upon our emotions is our religion. Religious feeling may be refined, practically, to reverence for the Unseen Power which controls the universe and to a love of the devotion to the principles of truth and righteousness. A religiously-minded man must ever be intolerant of falsehood and injustice.

What we call "religious intolerance" is not religious at all, but political. The mistake of confusing political with religious intolerance arises from the fact that the great majority of Roman Catholics and Protestants differ not only in theology, but in politics as well. Both Roman Catholics and Protestants to-day are too well educated to think it worth while to quarrel about their theological views. But there is this difference between these parties in the South and West and in the North. In the South and West the Protestants are fairly evenly scattered all over the country. They are everywhere in a hopeless minority. They, therefore, bow to the majority, and attend to their business, and never parade either their religion or their politics in public. They are tolerated because they give no cause for intolerance. But in the North the Roman Catholics, though in a minority in many places, are yet congregated in districts of their own and form majorities in those districts, and their numbers often make them aggressive. This is the real cause of the sectarian outbreaks in Ulster which we all deplore. No one wishes to interfere with Protestants quietly going to their place of worship in a Southern town. But were they to parade the streets with a Union Jack and a brass band, and singing "God Save the King," I doubt if they would receive much toleration.

To me the pity is that all parties do not see the folly of aggressive and irritating attacks upon those who differ from them, and try methods of peaceful persuasion. The principles of truth and righteousness will always win the day if given a fair chance. After all, human nature is the same in us all. The Sinn Feiner is out for the principles of liberty and self-determination. These are exactly the principles of the Ulster Orangeman. They only differ in the application of them—the Sinn Feiner seeking freedom in an Irish Republic, the Orangeman in the British Empire. The Sinn Feiner fears for his liberty at Westminster, the Orangeman at the Vatican. The Sinn Feiner dreads the Anglicisation of Ireland, the Orangeman the Romanisation. With a little mutual sympathy and toleration, each should see in the other a friend and a brother.

I am persuaded that no one will experience intolerance in any part of Ireland if he observes the following rules:—

Cultivate a love of truth and fact for their own sake.

Do not be afraid to state your honest convictions.

Treat all who differ from you with kindness and courtesy.

If, knowing the objection which a bull has to a red rag, you rush into his field and flare one in his face, blame yourself, not the bull, if you get tossed.—Yours, etc.,

SIR WALTER NUGENT'S POSITION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—My attention was called to-day to a reference to myself in your paper of Wednesday last, which I wired to you at once to contradict. It was unable to understand how such a report was circulated, more especially as I held very strongly, entirely opposite views. I think it would be disastrous at the present time if all forms of moderate opinions were to withdraw from whatever public positions they may hold in Ireland, thereby, no doubt, relieving themselves of responsibility, but also incapacitating themselves from pressing forward their views and assisting in bringing about that peace in Ireland which all of us, as individuals, can do something to promote.—Yours, etc.,

WALTER NUGENT.

THE EXPELLED BELFAST WORKERS.

DECISION OF TRADES UNION CONGRESS.

At yesterday's session of the Trades' Union Congress at Portsmouth, the Chairman (Mr. J. H. Thomas) said that, in the anxiety to uphold the Union Jack in Belfast, men were being prevented from working because of their religious and political opinion, and that there was a very serious state of affairs existing there. He announced that the Standing Orders Committee had received a deputation from Belfast, and had decided to submit the following resolution to the Congress:—"This Trades Union Congress instructs its Parliamentary Committee and the Executives of the various trades unions affected by the recent disturbances in Belfast, with a view to their taking a common line of action for the reinstatement of all trade unionists expelled from their work in the Belfast area."

Speaking in support of the resolution, Mr. J. Beard (President of the Workers' Union) said that there was no necessity to discuss the merits or demerits of the question. Both sides had prevented each other from working. That was a regrettable state of affairs, which the Congress should endeavour to bring to an end.

Mr. F. Lowe (Painters) said that the Press led the community to believe that it was some religious controversy that had brought about the banishment of the men working on Queen's Island. In his investigations in Belfast he had discovered that in his own trade (painting) only 100 of the men who were asked to sign the form of loyalty to King and country had received the trenches for long and a half years, and that they declined to sign that piece of paper. He had also discovered twenty-two members of his organisation who were actually members of Orange Lodges, but that was not even a covering point for them to work on the island. He found, in addition, a number of men prevented from working who had no knowledge of Sinn Fein or of the Labour movement, but who were nothing more than advanced Labour men. Every man who took an active part in the Labour movement in Belfast had been driven from the island for no other crime than that committed at the ballot box at the last election. He had come to the conclusion that there was only a small gang of hooligans working behind the Unionist Party which wanted to drive out those who took a political power in the last election. "There is," he said, "a dead set against the progressive movement in Ireland."

The resolution was carried.

THE BOYCOTT OF BELFAST.

At a meeting of Cork merchants and traders yesterday a committee was appointed for the purpose of carrying out the boycott of Belfast.

Bantry Town Commissioners have passed a resolution calling upon the local traders and banks to cease dealing with Belfast firms.

Carrick-on-Shannon Board of Guardians has decided to request the Volunteers to prevent northern dealers from purchasing cattle at local fairs.

REMARKABLE MANIFESTATIONS AT CASHEL.

Our Cashel Correspondent states that much interest has been aroused by "manifestations" which are said to have occurred at the Roman Catholic Presbytery in that town, two statues and two crucifixes having given forth red liquid, resembling blood. It is stated that a party of clergy, accompanied by the young man Walsh who attained some prominence in connection with similar occurrences in Templemore, on the same day back from Mount Melleray, called at the Presbytery, and became the guests of the Right Rev. Mgr. Innocent, Ryan, P.P., V.G., Dean of Cashel. Some of the party remained for the night, among them being Walsh. As the household was about to retire to rest at 10 o'clock two crucifixes and a statue of the Sacred Heart were noticed apparently to be sweating copiously, and they sweat it had a red colour. The red fluid trickled down the sacred emblems. Large congregations attended the parish Mass on Wednesday and Thursday mornings, when

Dean Ryan made reference to the remarkable occurrences, and cautioned the people about giving premature credence to the miraculous and supernatural in these happenings. He explained that such things might come from a fool or from an evil source. They were bound to be sceptical and critical, and should look on with doubt and hesitancy until God gave manifest approval by a miracle of the first order. Such Divine testimony the Dean said had not yet been given, hence their duty was to be reserved.

On Thursday further "manifestations" were observed.

REMARKABLE MANIFESTATIONS AT CASHEL.

Our Cashel Correspondent states that much interest has been aroused by "manifestations" which are said to have occurred at the Roman Catholic Presbytery in that town, two statues and two crucifixes having given forth red liquid, resembling blood. It is stated that a party of clergy, accompanied by the young man Walsh who attained some prominence in connection with similar occurrences in Templemore, on the same day back from Mount Melleray, called at the Presbytery, and became the guests of the Right Rev. Mgr. Innocent, Ryan, P.P., V.G., Dean of Cashel. Some of the party remained for the night, among them being Walsh. As the household was about to retire to rest at 10 o'clock two crucifixes and a statue of the Sacred Heart were noticed apparently to be sweating copiously, and they sweat it had a red colour. The red fluid trickled down the sacred emblems. Large congregations attended the parish Mass on Wednesday and Thursday mornings, when

Dean Ryan made reference to the remarkable occurrences, and cautioned the people about giving premature credence to the miraculous and supernatural in these happenings. He explained that such things might come from a fool or from an evil source. They were bound to be sceptical and critical, and should look on with doubt and hesitancy until God gave manifest approval by a miracle of the first order. Such Divine testimony the Dean said had not yet been given, hence their duty was to be reserved.

On Thursday further "manifestations" were observed.

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

MARKETS DULL AND EASIER. DUNLOP RUBBERS FALL SMARTLY. SHELL ACTIVITY.

The closing business day of the week was as usual, more or less uneventful yesterday, when quieter markets obtained and prices rather tended to ease where more cheerful in tendency the previous day. The outstanding feature was the depression and sharp fall in Dunlop Rubber Ord. Shares, in spite of the extraordinary general meeting of the company held in London yesterday, when sanction, as expected, was obtained to the recent proposed issue of share capital against the money received as premium on the issue of 1,000,000 £1 shares at £3 last January and a sum out of reserves, etc. The market was weaker than for a long time past. The proposed new issue of 3,000,000 further new Ord. Shares at 30s., after the other capitalisation goes through, was unfavourably interpreted by the market. Guinness, Textiles, and Marconis weakened a little. Oils and Tobaccos were busy and firm.

The Funds continue to fluctuate irregularly. Consols rose ¼ to 45½ and War Loan 5 p.c. ¼ to 85, but War Loan 4½ p.c. fell ¼ to 96¾ and Irish Land 2½ p.c. ¼ to 46½.

Banks, Steam, Canal, Bakery, Drapery, and Trading Shares were all drawn blank.

In Breweries, Guinness Ord. were ¼ weaker at 30½. Dublin Distillers offered, but nothing was done.

In Marconis the Ord. fell 1s. to 55s.

Home Rails attracted only limited attention. Ord. Stocks were unchanged. Great Southern Guaranteed closed ¼ higher at 51½, but Midland Great Western 4 p.c. Debs. fell 1 to 45, while the best bid for Dublin and Kingstown 5½ p.c. Debs. was 48, compared with 51½, the previous quotation.

Trams were idle outside Dublin United Ord. at 6, the previous level.

The feature of the day was the sharp fall of ½ to 5⅞ in Dunlop Rubber Ord. shares. After hours the figure was no better than 5⅞ ⅛. Parent Tyre Pref. fell 1½d. to 13s. 4½d., but the Ord. quoted 21s. 6d.

In Gas, Alliance and Dublin Consumers rose 3½ to 50.

As regards Manufacturing shares, Textiles eased. Coats fell 3d. to 54s. 3d., and Cottons 7½d. to 39s. 4½d. Goulding Ord. rose ¼ to 6½. Vickers remain at 23s. 9d.

Irish Times 2nd Pref. shares were firm at 13s. 6d. for an odd lot.

Other business done included Imperial Tobacco, which rose 3d. to 48s. 6d., and Marixan Eagle Oil ⅛ to 11⅛; but Shells, in which dealing was very extensive, finally fell ⅛ to 7⅛, after being 7⅛, ¼, ⅛. United Steel Ord. quoted 18s. 7½.

QUIET STOCKS.

SMALL EFFECT OF COAL DEADLOCK.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

There was nothing either in the tone or the appearance of markets yesterday to suggest that they had been unfavourably affected by the coal deadlock. Changes in Gilt-edged Securities were numerous nor important. Loan and other Stocks in this section were steady to firm. Corporation Stocks were somewhat easier in tendency due possibly to the coming competitive new issue, but there was no alteration in Colonial Government Securities, which remained quietly firm. Home Rails were lifeless and devoid of interest. Among Foreign Rails, Mexican issues were quiet, and the only improvement in Argentine descriptions was in Central Argentines. Market forecasts of the forthcoming Argentine Railway dividends for June 30 last are that they will be restored to the pre-war basis. Marked infirmity was displayed by San Paulos in the Brazilian Railway market in connection with the reported unfavourable rates decision. Among Foreign Bonds, Mexican issues were again prominent, the Fives of 1899, to mention one only, jumping up 7 points to 60. Other outstanding features were French Fives and Fours, both rising substantially on the news that the new French Loan of 100,000,000 dollars (£20,000,000) in the United States had been accorded such a brilliant reception.

LONDON STOCKS RESERVED.

Stock Exchange operations during yesterday's session were hesitating and reserved. There was not much selling to digest, and the stability of the undertone indicated that hopes were entertained that a way would be found out of the Labour impasse. Specialities not subject to domestic influences were strong here and there. Trade activity persisted, and the further rise in the exchange value of the dollar stimulated both dollar securities and Japanese Bonds. Among gilt-edged issues there was little movement for the moment. The new Quintuple Municipal Loan is diverting attention from this group. War Fives ace-sawed, but closed unchanged.

FOREIGN BONDS FIRM.—In the Foreign market there were several good features. French Loans were strong on the success of the American issue, the Fives jumping ¼ to 47, while the Fours at 35 were nearly ½ to the good. Belgian Threes held steady at 56, and Greek Bonds presented a firmer front. German Threes were 7/8, reflecting the weaker mark exchange. Among Far Eastern securities, Japanese Loans again tended forward, assisted by the higher dollar exchange value, quotations closing with gains of ¼ to 1. Chinese issues were mostly steady. Among South American securities, Mexicans continued their rise on the improved national outlook. The External Loan was up to 59 and the 6 p.c. to 64. Argentine and Brazilian Bonds were quiet. Peruvians hung fire.

Changes—Rises: French Loan, ¼ to 47; German Threes, ⅛ to 7/8; Japan 4½ p.c., 1 to 103; do. 5 p.c., 1 to 99; Mexican Fives, 6 to 59.

HOME RAILS NOMINAL.—Among Home Rails business was at an irreducible minimum, and prices often were nominal at previous levels. Where variations occurred they were slight and of a mixed character.

Change—Fall: London and South-Western, 1 to 88.

CANADIANS AND MEXICANS GOOD.—Canadian Pacifics, influenced by the course of the New York exchange, advanced to 170. Grand Trunk Stocks showed dullness and did not move. Mexican Rails preserved a quietly firm front, but showed little change. National of Mexico Prefs., however, gained ground, the 1st Pref. being up to 16. Argentine Rails were idle and featureless, but hardened slightly at first, but reacted, and finished about unchanged. United of Havana were easier at 8⅝.

IRREGULAR INDUSTRIALS.

FALL IN DUNLOPS—RISE IN OIL CAKES.

(FROM THE FINANCIAL NEWS OF TO-DAY.)

There were ups and downs in the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday, the lassoo and Industrial markets yesterday, the lassoo and Industrial markets yesterday, the lassoo

DUBLIN AND DISTRICT.

RECENT SHIPPING CLERKS' STRIKE.—Further efforts are being made towards the reinstatement of some two score Dublin shipping office clerks who were not taken back into the service of the North and South Wall and Dublin Docks following the recent strike. A deputation from the National Executive of Irish Labour Party, including Mr. Thomas Johnson, and Messrs. Farren and Cullen, waited upon Mr. Barry, manager of the British and Irish Steampacket Co., and hopes are entertained that the matter may be settled.

INSURANCE ACT CASE.—In the Southern Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Swifte, K.C., a fine of £5 and £5 costs was imposed upon Thomas Fleming, 13 Longford terrace, Monkstown, who was summoned by the National Health Insurance Commissioners for failing to pay a contribution of 44d. with respect to a child's nurse named Margaret McGrath. Mr. E. H. Benne, on behalf of the prosecution, said there appeared to be some question of principle involved, as the girl did not receive British pay.

ALLEGED LARCENY.—In the Northern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday, before Mr. Cooper, K.C., James McCann, alias Collins, and Patrick Lee, alias Whelan, were returned for trial on a series of charges of larceny preferred by Detective Officers Lynch and O'Leary. The articles stated to have been stolen included an overcoat, the property of Private Bradley, of the Dublin Fusiliers; four silver forks, the property of Sir Arthur Chance, 42 Merrion square; the total value of the stolen property was estimated at £50. It was recommended that the detective officers on the activity they had shown in the case.

SOUTH DUBLIN REVISION COURT.—Mr. Richard Dawson, Assistant Registration Officer, held a Revision Court last night in the Courthouse, Kingstown, and dealt (it is understood) with some 1,000 objections. Mr. Hy. O'Morrin, solicitor, appeared on behalf of Unionist voters, and Mr. Cadwallader, solicitor, represented the Sinn Fein party. Four years ago, on the same lists, the great majority being Sinn Fein. Of objections and claims there were 191 in the East and West Monkstown Division, and 43 in Glasthule. In Dalkey there were 147 objections to the list of electors in the East and West Wards, and 51 in Glasthule.

DISEASED ANIMALS.—In the Southern Police Court, Dublin, yesterday, on the prosecution of Mr. S. F. Burke (Assistant Law Agent, Dublin Corporation), Michael Healy, Cranlin road, was fined £1 and costs on a charge of having brought into the Corporation Cattle Market, on May 28th, a cow which was unfit for human food. Mr. F. M. Scales appeared for the defendant. Thomas Flynn, Enfield, Co. Meath, was fined 10s. and costs for having, on June 2nd, exposed at the cattle market a three sheep affected with sheep scab. A like penalty was imposed upon William Harrington, Templeogue, for a similar offence regarding one sheep on 1st July.

WITH SEVEN-DAY ORDINARY LICENCE ATTACHED.

PERHAPS the most important of City Licensed Premises, having regard to its numerous attributes, including splendid structure, very select surroundings, choice, convenient, and eminent position, aloofness from opposition, and being favourably held. Built, regardless of expense, in the year 1913, by Mr. Thomas Mackey, after plans prepared by Mr. T. J. Cullen, M.R.I.A.I.

Held under Indentures of Lease for long periods at a rent amounting to £64.

(PER INSTRUCTIONS OF MRS. TEMPLE.)

No. 24 BOTANIC ROAD—The Grocery and Italian Warehouse Department is very spacious.

BOTH DEPARTMENTS are elaborately fitted in richly carved American oak, and the up-to-date character of the general appointments leaves nothing to be desired; every detail conducive to efficiency, cleanliness, and the public comfort has been scrupulously carried out. From Prospect Avenue there is gate entrance to extensive yard, through which goods are served to the various cellars and stores conveniently thereto.

THE RESIDENCE is approached by tiled porch entrance, and may be described as a commodious and perfect home, unsurpassed by that of any business premises in the City.
